Sheriff Coombs,

druggists.

John M. Coombs, sheriff of Beaver county, was recently tried for the alleged crime of carelessly permitting a prisoner to escape, and found guilty. The case was thoroughly prosecuted and vigorously defended; the jury were out three hours, and it was subsequently ascertaine; that several of them who were in favor of acquittal and who welled that way for a long time, gave way at last only under the pressure of instructions from the court. An appeal was determined upon, but rendered unnecessary by the action of the prosecution in moving a suspension of sentence indefinitely, which Judge Twiss ordered. This is equivalent to a "lischarge.

From Salmon River.

Mr. John Hancock, who has spent some time recently in the Salmon] river country, returned last week bearing the most flattering reports from mining claims he had been working in that section. The gentleman was sent thither in The gentleman was sent untrier in the interests of certain properties owned by Mesars. Thos. W. Jen-nings, Isaac Jennings, James Sharp, John Sharp, Jr., Zeb Jacobs and others, which promise to develop something decidedly handsome. There will be an effort put forth at an early day looking to extensive working, notwithstanding the working, notwithstanding the claims are situated at considerable distance from the railroad.

An Acquisition.

Judge Daniel Tyler, of Beaver, editor. Our contemporary should now take a stride to the front and stay there. In his salutatory, the ludge says:

Our long standing in the community and the acquaintance of the people with our writing as an author, editor and correspondent of the Descret News, Juvenile Instructor and other journals, must speak for us either for better or werse as reaching may wise them. people may view them.

The vigorous policy which the journal wid uphold under its new directorship, is outlined to some extent in the following extract anent the acquittal of Frank James:

We don't go narry red on murderers going scot free on filmsy technicalities when they are known to be guilty.

It will thus be seen that journalism in the southern part of our Territory is looking up and ahead.

The Sunday School Meeting.

The meeting held in the Twelfth ward Assembly hall on Sunday evening was largely attended by braced experience in the Sabbath school cause; exhortations to per-severe in the work of teaching the rising generation principles of knowledge and truth; calls for volunteers to enlist in the teachers ranks; invitations to parents to oftener visit the schools; advice as to the proper way to teach; counse concerning conduct, promptness punctuality and order, and a brief sermon on the observance of the word of wisdom by old and young President George Q Cannon said there had been so much spoken that he was afraid he might be intruding; he Lad been greatly interested in the subject when first proposed by the bishop, and promised to be present if in the city; he held the Sabbath school very dear; it had eccupied his thoughts and attention and nobler than that of teaching children to become what they should be. When the Sunday school movement first began, as early as 1849, there were spasmodic efforts to maintain it, but no general plan. He felt like devoting his plan. He left like devoting his time to the cause, but had been absent some fifteen years, preach-ing, etc.; but upon his return from his European mission he started the Fourteeath ward Sabbath school, and a year or two after began the publication of the Juvanile In-structor, as an educator of children, which had been issued for sixteen years with beneficial results. Elder Goddard had made the Sunday school cause a hobby; he was glad of it, as it was attended with good. There was no movement to-day no labor performed—that had re-sulted in so much good as this; its effects are felt in the uplifting of children and in giving them moral tone. There were between onethird and one-fourth of the Terri torial population enrolled on the books of the Sunday schools. He compared the condition of the Territory and the church in early days with the present and said there were many children better conversant with this history than conversant with this history than some of their parents. The fruits of the labors of those engaged in the work of the Sabbath school were gratifying; they could not be overstated. A better class of teachers, thoroughly indoctrinated, was growing up, and the effects of their labors toward improvement in knowledge and wisdom could not be estimated—they were incalculable. It was desirable that more interest be taken strable that more interest be taken by parents; they should visit the Judge Daniel Tyler, of Beaver, schools; their presence would enhas purchased an interest in the courage and stimulate both children and teachers. He had heard good reports of the Twelfth ward day school; that it was not excelled in the city, and asked why could not the same be said of its Sabbath chool. It was not the number of children that was required, it was the quality. Isaac, who was trained, immortalized bis mother, and the speaker would prefer one Isaac to a dozen un-trained boys, Children should be cultivated and cared for; kept from sin and contamination; that the world might be the better for their having lived in it. gaged in this Sabbath school work strengthen the cause of truth, add beauty to it and laurels to their parents' brows. He urged upon those who would be useful to engage in it, or in something that was more useful.

Singing by the Sunday school

Singing by the Sunday school choir and several duets by Messrs. Goddard and Willes lent an additional interest to the meeting which was highly appreciated by all.

Indignant!

The Ogden Pilot is indignant at the conduct of "three human beings who discrace the title of men," who sabbath school children, their parents and friends, who manifested great interest in the remarks made as well as the object. After the preliminary singing and prayer, Bishop C'awson introduced, one at a time, Elders John Alford, Richard T. Horne, T. E. Taylor, John C. Cutler, William Willes, George Goddard, Sunday schoolvisitors, and Thomas V. Williams, superintendent of the Twelfth ward school, who were each alloted five minutes time to speak. Their remarks embraced experience in the Sabbath who discrace the title of men," who on Friday night last visited Miss Lou Harpell's house, on Third street, Lou Harpell's house, on Third stre peatedly subjected to outrages and no attempt to stop them be made. It is pretty rough, on that statement; but how does the Pilot know it was men who did it, and how does it know that there were inmates whose lives were endangered?

The Davis Estate.

The estate of the late Dr. M. L. Davis of this city which has been a subject of more or less contention in the probate court for several months, has at last been settled satisfactorily to all parties, It seems that the doctor left a will which lacked the signatures of witnesses, lacked the signatures of witnesses, and was therefore void; but it was agreed among the heirs that its provisions should be carried out just the same, and this, with some other features rendered necessary by subsequent developments, was ordered by Judge Smith and a decree thereupon entered.
